Fire Swatter for Wildland Fires

1011894

The Fire Swatter is used as an auxiliary tool in extinguishing wildland fires.

In order to extinguish the marginal parts of the fire affected by a small flame, firefighters usually use swatters in addition to fire backpacks . The Fire Swatter is handled in such a way that the firefighter suffocates the flames with mechanical impact (strokes) and thus extinguishes the fire. It is useful in areas where there is no water or the water supply is very difficult.

When extinguishing fires with a swatter, make sure that you are at a safe distance from the flames and be sure to use protective firefighting equipment for interventions in wildland / forest fires.

Characteristics:

- Wooden handle in red color
- Galvanized sheet steel head
